SAFE ENVIRONMENT PROGRAM

We will once again be having our Safe Environment Program on Wednesday, March 4th, to teach our young students how to seek help from a trusted adult. This year's topics are Being a Safe Friend/Feelings and Facts. We must trust God's Grace and the funny feeling in the stomach the Holy Spirit gives us when something just isn't right; that message from Him telling us to run to a trusted adult for help. If you decide that your wish is for your child not to attend, please fill out the 'Opt Out Form' sent home February 4th, or contact your child's teacher to receive another copy. So, it is not confusing, if you choose for your child to attend, you do nothing but bring them to class. The students whose parents are opting out will go to another classroom during the lesson and return when it is over. All student please report to their normal classrooms that evening. Of course, if you have any questions, you are free to contact:

Paul or Carroll Schuller

MONTH 4 : "I had a Dream Today"

Thank you for continuing to pray for your spiritually adopted baby! We are now beginning the 2nd trimester. A brief review of the 1st trimester: Month 1: the baby's heart started beating by week 3. Month 2: All the internal and external organs started rapidly developing. Month 3: Formation of nails and fingerprints began, and the baby is now able to squint and swallow. By 9 weeks, the baby can even suck its thumb.

Month 4 highlights include: The baby's brain continues to develop, and this will continue until 14 years of age. Taste buds now function. Fine hair is growing on the head along with eyebrows and eyelashes. Rapid eye movement means the baby can now dream.

You can follow your baby's growth and development each month by checking the "WATCH ME GROW" posters in the vestibule.

Our daily prayer by Archbishop Fulton Sheen:

Jesus, Mary, and Joseph, I love you very much.

I beg you to spare the life of the unborn baby

that I have spiritually adopted who is in danger of abortion.

HEART'S DEEPEST LONGING

We have been reflecting on our own sanctification. To be sanctified means to become holy. We all desire holiness whether we acknowledge it or not. Part of becoming holy – sanctified – is to cleanse ourselves from the "spirit of the world" (1 Cor. 2:12)<sup>6</sup>. The "spirit of the world" consist in the ways of sin; the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life (1 John 2:16). All of these forms present themselves to us in many and various ways. Our part is to not allow these idols to overtake our will. Those who live by them do not know the world and its deceitfulness. The world is a true tyrant. Those who serve it are as slaves. Just look at the amount of time, effort, and even sacrifice we pay toward the world only to "fit in" with everyone else. The whole while being filled with evils, sorrows, worry, anxieties, fear, concern, doubt, and despair. We, therefore, become slave to the world's wretchedness and think little (if anything) of it. We willingly surrender body and soul for the here and now that we damn ourselves without complaint; leaving us only fit for hellfire. Yet, here we are. The ways of the world surround us and if we do not adhere to its demands we are considered as mad! If we only did half of what we do to serve this world but for Christ instead how much more happy will we be! Jesus said that His "yoke is easy, and His burden is light" (Matthew 11:30)<sup>7</sup> if we only took His word for it and apply it to our everyday lives we would see a literal world of difference!

- Paul A. Ray

Saints Cyril, Monk, and Methodius, Bishop

On February 14, we celebrate the Memorial of Saints Cyril and Methodius, two brothers who were known for their monumental work inventing the early form of the Cyrillic alphabet and translating the Bible into the Slavic language. Despite facing enduring opposition, they persevered faithfully in spreading the Gospel until their deaths.

Early life

Cyril and Methodius were born in Greek city of Thessalonica in the early 800s. At a young age, they pursued studies in the humanities at Constantinople, where they distinguished themselves with their sharp intellects. Methodius went on to join the monastery of Polychronius, and Cyril was given a special mission by the Byzantine Empress Theodora to bring Christianity to the Khazer tribes of the land beyond the Chersonese. On his way there, he discovered the remains of St. Clement I attached to an anchor and took them with him on the rest of his journey.

Cyril dedicated himself to studying the language and evangelizing to the Khazer. Striving to exemplify the Christian virtue of self-control, he rarely accepted gifts from the inhabitants, who in turn were moved by his teaching and piety to abandon their superstitions for the saving grace of Christ.

Cyril and Methodius go to Great Moravia

Following this mission, Cyril returned to Constantinople, where he joined the same monastery as Methodius. But shortly after, the brothers were selected for a new mission to Great Moravia (today's territory of Slovakia and Czechia). To this end, Cyril invented an alphabet for the Slavic language, the "Glagolitic" alphabet, more commonly known as Cyrillic, which had never had a written form before. This enabled him to translate the Bible into Slavic, making the Gospel more accessible to the people of Great Moravia. As a result of his efforts and evangelization, many of them turned to Christ.

Cyril and Methodius face opposition

News of the brothers' groundbreaking work spread throughout the provinces, and soon, Pope Nicholas I requested the presence of the brothers in Rome. They carried the remains of St. Clement with them, seeking to bring them to the basilica of the saint's home city. By the time they arrived, Pope Nicholas I had died, and his successor Adrian II met with them instead.

There, they were accused of flouting ancient customs and holy rites by preaching in the vernacular instead of the Latin liturgy. Fortunately, their strong defense convinced Adrian and the clergy of their goodwill and noble conduct, and he made them bishops.

Cyril dies and Methodius clashes with Svätopluk

Cyril passed away on February 14, 869, and was buried in the Basilica of St. Clement in Lateran. Following his death, Methodius returned to Great Moravia, where he served as archbishop and a teacher to Prince Svätopluk. However, when the young prince neglected his duties despite repeated warnings, Methodius excommunicated him.

The move incited Svätopluk's ire, and he cast Methodius into exile, but the exclusion didn't last long; after a time, Methodius was recalled and Svätopluk came to see his error, dedicating himself to a fresh life. Methodius continued to spread the Gospel across the continent, to the Liburnians, Serbians, Pannonians, Bulgarians, Dalmatians, and others.

Once again, Methodius faced accusations over use of the vernacular in the liturgy, and defended himself in Rome before Pope John VIII and a group of bishops and clergy in 880. Though he succeeded in convincing them of his innocence, the pope had to write many letters testifying to his good character before he was free to pursue his ministry again. He travelled to Bohemia, where he led Prince Bořivoj and his wife to Christ, and continued across Europe, spreading the Gospel and establishing episcopal Sees before he passed away in 884.

Popes writes about Cyril and Methodius

In September 30, 1880, Pope Leo XIII wrote the encyclical Grande munus (Great Duty) on Saints Cyril and Methodius. One hundred years later, on December 31, 1980, Pope St. John Paul II wrote the apostolic letter Egregiae virtutis (Outstanding Excellence), proclaiming the saints Cyril and Methodius, along with Saint Benedict, as patrons of Europe.
